

Even though I've been on the Do Not Call List for a couple years, I still receive calls and have to let them know that I am on the list and not to call back. My fax line gets a fax once or twice a month that is unsolicited by me. I then have to take the time to call them back to get off there lists. In fact, one company needed four phone calls and a threat from me to go to the FCC if they did not stop faxing me; at which point they did. My point; as tough as the laws may be, making the restrictions or penalties easier for these telemarketers will just give us and you much more grief and probably paperwork!
